

Film: Bless Me, Ultima
Thursday, November 8 | 7 pm
Bank of America Theatre

The screen adaptation of Rudolfo Anaya's iconic work, set in the 1940s in rural New Mexico, is about a young boy and the mysterious healer who opens his eyes to the wonders of the spiritual realm. As the entire world is plunged into war and Antonio Márez grapples with the harsh realities all around him, his life is forever changed by the sudden arrival of Ultima, a curandera who inspires him to see the world from a new perspective. 2011; Carl Franklin; English; 102 minutes; rated PG-13.

This is a free ticketed event and part of our Bank of America Free Thursday Film Series. Tickets are available one hour prior to the start time.

Opera In the Museum

Date and Time: TBD

Enjoy a sampling of music from the sold-out opera based on Rudolfo Anaya's beloved novel, Bless Me, Ultima, surrounded by the artwork from the exhibit, La Ultima Exhibición. This brand new opera was commissioned by Opera Southwest, the NHCC and Opera Cultura in California, and the composer, Héctor Armenta, worked with Mr. Anaya on the libretto.

Check www.nmccnm.org/events for more information.

This program is limited to 40 people and the cost is $12 per person. That includes access to the entire museum so come a little early or stay a little late to see everything!

RELATED PROGRAMMING FOR

La Ultima Exhibición

La Ultima Exhibición, curated by Augustine Romero, features visual interpretations of Rudolfo Anaya's celebrated book, Bless Me, Ultima (1972) – a portrait of life in rural New Mexico as seen through the eyes of a young boy during World War II. Romero curated a previous iteration of this exhibition in 2006 at the South Broadway Cultural Center and the NHCC Art Museum is thrilled to host the re-imagined version twelve years later. In addition to seeing the exhibit every Tuesday through Sunday from 10 am to 5 pm until November 11, 2018, you also are invited to join us for ancillary programming that is intended to add depth and help you explore this exhibit in new ways. Visit nhccnm.org for more information.
